PROFILE

My passion for the Internet and a boundless curiosity are what led me to become a software engineer as a second career. I think of myself as a polyglot and a generalist with a wide range of interests and abilities. My specialties are Typescript and Ruby, but my understanding of engineering as a team sport is what empowers me to build great things.

EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

Tinkerer-In-Chief
San Francisco
Jul 2023 — Present

Used my time away from the workforce to learn, grow, and have fun developing applications for my communities

- Fetchtable.org: a collaborative shopping experience based on veritablevegetable.com, supporting wholesale food ordering for a network of communal houses in San Francisco
    - Created a bidding mechanism for houses to negotiate what produce to order each week
    - Automated placing orders on veritablevegetable.org
- Dojo.sfgoclub.com: a companion app for the San Francisco Go club's library and attendance operations
    - Matched books with a QR codes, enabling members to borrow books
    - Created a physical sign-in system for the club, based on a personal QR code and a scan gun
- Self-hosted all projects and websites, using the power of linux, docker, nginx, and Ansible.

Founding Engineer, Get Weatherized
San Francisco
Jan 2023 — Jun 2023

Lent my strengths to bootstrap the team at GetWeatherized.com as a founding engineer and the company's first hire.

- Implemented vast sections of www.getweatherized.com
- Set foundational patterns for development and team processes
- Met with pilot partners, and collected feedback to inform subsequent product iterations

Software Engineer, Transcend
San Francisco
Mar 2020 — Oct 2021

Joined the team responsible for automating data subject requests, which involved expanding our privacy capabilities by means of sophisticated encryption techniques, and integrating with 3rd party APIs.

- Implemented trustless security system for safe storage of customer API credentials
- Added tests, mocking, and monitoring to Transcend's email-backed messaging service, restoring confidence in the service's performance

HOBBIES

Bass, Guitar, Dancing,
Swimming, Go, Climbing

- Decoupled Transcend's emailing infrastructure from its backend monolith, enabling customers to process messages in a region of their choice via a network of lambda functions
- Monitored and optimized database performance
- Researched and implemented third party integrations for automating data subject requests
- Improved developer productivity by introducing a repl, debuggers, and local serverless tooling

Software Engineer, Brandless   San Francisco
May 2017 — Jan 2020

Joined as the company's second engineer and eventually led a team of five engineers through large-scale, business-critical projects, while fostering a collegial environment conducive to autonomy, learning and levity

- Maintained the service responsible for Brandless' supply chain management, orchestrating communications between a webstore, an ERP, and fulfillment centers with a network of asynchronous workers
- Delivered a warehouse management system for an owned and operated fulfillment operation
- Conceived and communicated detailed technical roadmaps to both technical and non-technical audiences
- Entrusted with large projects — multiple versions of the brandless.com home page, store credits, product detail pages, gift cards, a reorder page, and more — scoping out workload and distributing tasks

Media Partnerships Manager, Twitter   San Francisco
Sep 2009 — Feb 2014

- Oversaw the language, content and business development of Twitter internationally
- Relocated to Paris to open Twitter's French office. Hired and trained the local media partnerships team
